When artist Simona Colzi pulls the curtain back on her display Tintures Salvatges at 7.00pm tomorrow (19 June), the opening will signal the start of a new season of exhibitions at Centre Antoni Tur ‘Gabrielet’. Varying textures, which merge textile tissues and the natural environment of Formentera, embody the intersection of quality, sustainability and aesthetics. Colzi’s ambition, besides decrying the pollution which is synonymous with the synthetic fabric industry, is to offer a tribute, however small, to life and nature on the island of Formentera.

The display will remain open to the public until 28 June, Monday to Saturday, 11.00am to 2.00pm and 6.00pm to 8.00pm.
