

Last night, the illustrator Tres Voltes Rebel, a.k.a. Ame Soler, pulled back the curtain on Som les bruixes d'avui, an exhibition which has brought to the island by Formentera's culture department as part of celebrations surrounding International Day for the Elimination of Violence against Women. Born in Valencia and based in Barcelona, the artist creates illustrations advocating women and men's equality.

Encouraging one and all to come out for the display, President Ferrer said she was “thrilled to see Ame Soler taking her appeal to the people of Formentera; the path she has tread invites reflection”. The exhibition will remain at the Sala d'Exposicions “Ajuntament Vell” until 30 November. It is open from Monday evenings through Saturday, 11.00am to 2.00pm and 6.00pm to 8.00pm.
