

This morning, Maxwell Wright, director of the Formentera Jazz Festival (FJF), and Tony Gartell and Gustavo Rojo, of the local jazz band, presented the festival that runs today through Sunday.

Alejandra Ferrer, Vice President and Councillor of Tourism, and Susana Labrador, Councillor of Culture, thanked the three for organising this festival of music and culture for tourists and residents.

The complete programme is available on the FJF website and on the attached poster.

Returning to its pre-pandemic format, the FJF programme will offer a mix of master classes, presentations and "sound connections" held online and free, nightly, in-the-flesh musical performances which are open to the general public. After tonight's opening session at Blue Bar, FJF heads to Plaça de la Constitució on Friday night and Saturday before celebrating its closing session Sunday at Chezz Gerdi.
