

The president's office of the Formentera Council wishes to advise islanders that Formentera is currently on orange alert based on Aemet's forecast of rain and storms on Eivissa and Formentera. Experts say the showers could increase in intensity this afternoon.

In light of forecasted heavy rainfall and storms from this afternoon until tomorrow morning which could leave potentially dangerously large amounts of water in their wake, the Council is urging caution and discouraging both unnecessary car travel and parking in areas prone to flooding.

If you are in danger or involved in an accident, the 112 emergency assistance service is in charge of any storm-related operations. In related news the municipal pool will be closed from 2.00pm.
