

Today Ana Juan, president of the Consell of Formentera, and councillors of the cabinet, have brought back the traditional Christmas toast and engaged in a moment of celebration with the workers of the local administration. The toast was suspended for the last two years due to the pandemic.

The president wished everyone happy holidays and applauded "municipal workers' daily work and commitment to public service." She also trumpeted milestones this year like "establishment of professional positions for staff and the process of stabilising the workforce, which will improve not only working conditions but public services too."

Students in the vocational Cooking and Gastronomy course and Hospitality Services course and students in the basic vocational Cooking and Catering programme at IES Marc Ferrer served an aperitif.
