

At 8.00pm, Thursday 9 August, Sol Courreges will take to Centre Antoni Tur "Gabrielet" to pull the curtain back on "Stop". The exhibition focuses on 12 global species and an equal number that are found in Spain and which are in danger of extinction, according to information provided by National Geographic. Techniques employed by the artist range from acrylics to pens and pencils, with, as always, recycled material playing a central role in backgrounds.

"Stop" runs from 10 to 18 August, and can be seen 10.00am to 2.00pm and 7.00pm to 10.00pm.
